	erk's Tale Modern Translation
PART		41.	That we with sincere hearts may here complain,
1.	There is, in the west side of Italy,	42.	Nor let your ears my humble voice disdain.
2.	Down at the foot of Mount Viso the cold,	43.	"Though I have naught to do in this matter
3.	A pleasant plain that yields abundantly,	44.	More than another man has in this place,
4.	Where many a tower and town one may behold,	45.	Yet for as much as you, most honoured sir,
5.	That were there founded in the times of old.	46.	Have always showed me favour and much grace,
6.	With many another fair delightful sight;	47.	I dare the more to ask of you a space
7.	Saluzzo is this noble region bright.	48.	Of audience, to set forth our request,
8.	A marquis once was lord of all that land,	49.	And you, my lord, will do as you like best.
9.	As were his noble ancestors before;	50.	"For truly, lord, so well do we like you
10.	Obedient and ready to his hand	51.	And all your works (and ever have), that we-
11.	Were all his lieges, both the less and more.	52.	We could not, of ourselves, think what to do
12.	Thus in delight he lived, and had of yore,	53.	To make us live in more felicity,
13.	Beloved and feared, through favour of Fortune,	54.	Save one thing, lord, and if your will it be,
14.	Both by his lords and by the common run.	55.	That to be wedded man you hold it best,
15.	Therewith he was, to speak of lineage,	56.	Then were your people's hearts at utter rest.
16.	Born of the noblest blood of Lombardy,	57.	"But bow your neck beneath that blessed yoke
17.	With person fair, and strong, and young of age,	58.	Of sovereignty and not of hard service,
18.	And full of honour and of courtesy;	59.	The which men call espousal or wedlock;
19.	Discreet enough to lead his nation, he;	60.	And pray think, lord, among your thoughts so wise,
20.	Save in some things wherein he was to blame,	61.	How our days pass and each in different guise;
21.	And Walter was this young lord's Christian name.	62.	For though we sleep or wake or roam or ride,
22.	I blame him thus, that he considered naught	63.	Time flies, and for no man will it abide.
23.	Of what in coming time might him betide,	64.	"And though your time of green youth flower as yet,
24.	But on his present wish was all his thought,	65.	Age creeps in always, silent as a stone;
25.	As, he would hunt and hawk on every side;	66.	Death threatens every age, nor will forget
26.	Well-nigh all other cares would he let slide,	67.	For any state, and there escapes him none:
27.	And would not, and this was the worst of all,	68.	And just as surely as we know, each one,
28.	Marry a wife, for aught that might befall.	69.	That we shall die, uncertain are we all
29.	That point alone his people felt so sore	70.	What day it is when death shall on us fall.
30.	That in a flock one day to him they went,	71.	"Accept then of us, lord, the true intent,
31.	And one of them, the wisest in all lore,	72.	That never yet refused you your behest,
32.	Or else because the lord would best consent	73.	And we will, lord, if you will give consent,
33.	That he should tell him what the people meant,	74.	Choose you a wife without delay, at least,
34.	Or else that he could make the matter clear,	75.	Born of the noblest blood and the greatest
35.	He to the marquis spoke as you shall hear.	76.	Of all this land, so that it ought to seem
36.	"O noble marquis, your humanity	70. 77.	Honour to God and you, as we shall deem.
37.	Assures us, aye, and gives us hardiness	77. 78.	"Deliver us from all our constant dread
38.	As often as there is necessity	78. 79.	And take yourself a wife, for High God's sake;
39.	That we to you may tell our heaviness.	79. 80.
40.	Accept, lord, now of your great nobleness		For if it so befell, which God forbid,
- 0.	recept, ford, now or your great houseless	81.	That by your death your noble line should break

The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
82.	And that a strange successor should come take	123.	That he would set for them a certain day
83.	Your heritage, woe that we were alive!	124.	For his espousal, soon as might be; yea,
84.	Wherefore we pray you speedily to wive."	125.	For still the people had a little dread
85.	Their humble prayer and their so earnest cheer	126.	Lest that the marquis would no woman wed.
86.	Roused in the marquis' heart great sympathy.	127.	He granted them the day that pleased him best
87.	"You'd have me," he replied, "my people dear,	128.	Whereon he would be married, certainly,
88.	Do what I've never yet thought necessary.	129.	And said he did all this at their request;
89.	I have rejoiced in my fond liberty,	130.	And they with humble hearts, obediently,
90.	That men so seldom find in their marriage;	131.	Kneeling upon their knees full reverently,
91.	Where I was free, I must be in bondage.	132.	All thanked him there, and thus they made an end
92.	"Nevertheless, I see your true intent,	133.	Of their design and homeward did they wend.
93.	And know there's always sense in what you say;	134.	And thereupon he to his officers
94.	Wherefore of my free will, will I consent	135.	Ordered that for the fete they should provide,
95.	To wed a wife, as soon as ever I may.	136.	And to his household gentlemen and squires,
96.	But whereas you have offered here today	137.	Such charges gave as pleased him to decide;
97.	To choose a wife for me, I you release	138.	And all obeyed him: let him praise or chide,
98.	From that, and pray that you thereof will cease.	139.	And each of them did all his diligence
99.	"For God knows well that children oft retain	140.	To show unto the fete his reverence.
100.	Naught of their worthy elders gone before;
101.	Goodness comes all from God, not of the strain	PAR	ГІІ
102.	Whereof they were engendered; furthermore	141.	Not far from that same honoured palace where
103.	I trust in God's great goodness, and therefore	142.	This marquis planned his marriage, at this tide,
104.	My marriage and my state and all my ease	143.	There stood a hamlet, on a site most fair,
105.	I leave to Him to do with as He please.	144.	Wherein the poor folk of the countryside
106.	"Let me alone in choosing of my wife,	145.	Stabled their cattle and did all abide,
107.	That burden on my own back I'll endure;	146.	And where their labour gave them sustenance
108.	But I pray you, and charge you on your life,	147.	After the earth had yielded abundance.
109.	That what wife I may take, me you'll assure	148.	Amongst these humble folk there dwelt a man
110.	You'll honour her life's tenure,	149.	Who was considered poorest of them all;
111.	In word and deed, both here and everywhere,	150.	But the High God of Heaven sometimes can
112.	As if she were an emperor's daughter fair.	151.	Send His grace to a little ox's stall;
113.	"And furthermore, this shall you swear, that you	152.	Janicula men did this poor man call.
114.	Against my choice shall neither grouse nor strive;	153.	A daughter had he, fair enough to sight;
115.	Since I'm forgoing liberty, and woo	154.	Griselda was this young maid's name, the bright.
116.	At your request, so may I ever thrive	155.	If one should speak of virtuous beauty,
117.	As, where my heart is set, there will I wive;	156.	Then was she of the fairest under sun;
118.	And save you give consent in such manner,	157.	Since fostered in dire poverty was she,
119.	I pray you speak no more of this matter."	158.	No lust luxurious in her heart had run;
120.	With hearty will they swore and gave assent	159.	More often from the well than from the tun
121.	To all this, and no one of them said nay;	160.	She drank, and since she would chaste virtue please,
122.	Praying him, of his grace, before they went,	161.	She knew work well, but knew not idle ease.

The Cle	erk's Tale Modern Translation But though this maiden tender was of age,	203.	That for such wedding would be meet to tell.
163.	Yet in the breast of her virginity	204.	The time of mid-morn of that very day
164.	There was enclosed a ripe and grave courage;	205.	Approached when this lord's marriage was to be;
165.	And in great reverence and charity	206.	And all the palace was bedecked and gay,
166.	Her poor old father fed and fostered she;	207.	Both hall and chambers, each in its degree;
167.	A few sheep grazing in a field she kept,	208.	With kitchens stuffed with food in great plenty,
168.	For she would not be idle till she slept.	209.	There might one see the last and least dainty
169.	And when she homeward came, why she would bring	210.	That could be found in all of Italy.
170.	Roots and green herbs, full many times and oft,	211.	This regal marquis, splendidly arrayed,
170.	The which she'd shred and boil for her living,	212.	With lords and ladies in his company
171.	And made her bed a hard one and not soft;	213.	(Who to attend the feasting had been prayed)
172.	Her father kept she in their humble croft	213.	And of his retinue the bachelory,
173. 174.	With what obedience and diligence	214.	With many a sound of sundry melody,
174.	Ç	213. 216.
	A child may do for father's reverence.		Unto the village whereof I have told,
176.	Upon Griselda, humble daughter pure,	217.	In this array the nearest way did hold.
177.	The marquis oft had looked in passing by,	218.	Griselda who, God knows, was innocent
178.	As he a-hunting rode at adventure;	219.	That for her sake was all this fine array,
179.	And when it chanced that her he did espy,	220.	To fetch some water, to a fountain went,
180.	Not with the glances of a wanton eye	221.	Yet she returned soon, did this lovely may,
181.	He gazed at her, but all in sober guise,	222.	For she had heard it said that on this day
182.	And pondered on her deeply in this wise:	223.	The marquis was to wed, and if she might,
183.	Commending to his heart her womanhood,	224.	She was full fain to see the glorious sight.
184.	And virtue passing that of any wight,	225.	She thought: "With other maidens I will stand
185.	Of so young age in face and habitude.	226.	(Who are my friends) within our door, and see
186.	For though the people have no deep insight	227.	The marchioness, and therefore I'll turn hand
187.	In virtue, he considered all aright	228.	To do at home, as soon as it may be,
188.	Her goodness, and decided that he would	229.	The household work that's waiting there for me;
189.	Wed only her, if ever wed he should.	230.	And then I'll be at leisure to behold
190.	The day of wedding came, but no one can	231.	Her, if they this way to the castle hold."
191.	Tell who the woman is that bride shall be;	232.	And as across her threshold she'd have gone,
192.	At which strange thing they wondered, many a man,	233.	The marquis came, and for her did he call;
193.	And they said, marvelling, in privacy:	234.	And she set down her water jar anon
194.	"Will not our lord yet leave his vanity?	235.	Beside the threshold, in an ox's stall,
195.	Will he not wed? Alas, alas, the while!	236.	And down upon her two knees did she fall
196.	Why will he thus himself and us beguile?"	237.	And, kneeling, with grave countenance, was still
197.	Nevertheless, this marquis has bade make,	238.	Till she had heard what was his lordship's will.
198.	Of jewels set in gold and in rich azure,	239.	This thoughtful marquis spoke unto this maid
199.	Brooches and rings, all for Griselda's sake,	240.	Full soberly, and said in this manner:
200.	And for her garments took he then the measure	241.	"Griselda, where's your father?" so he said.
201.	By a young maiden of her form and stature,	242.	And she, with reverence and with humble cheer,
202.	And found all other ornaments as well	243.	Answered: "My lord, he is but inside here."

And in she went without more tarrying 285. But briefly through the marquis aid her father bring. 286. These are the very words the marquis said 486. He by the hand then took this ancient man 287. To this most modest, truly constant maid. 288. "Griselda," said he, "You shall understand 288. "Griselda," said he, "You shall understand 289. It's pleasing to your father and to me 280. If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide, 290. That I wed you, and even it may stand, 281. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 292. But these demands must I first make," said he, 283. "You low me, and I know it well today, 294. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 285. "You low me, and I know it well today, 294. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 285. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 286. Pleases you too; especially therefore 287. Assure me on the point I made before- 288. Can we together in this compact draw, 289. And you to grumble never, night or day? 289. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 380. By word or frown to what I have designed. 280. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 380. Swear this, and here I will our contract bind." 281. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 380. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 481. That is do not hing; you are my lord so dear That what to say: "O Lord, I am willing 380. And here I swear that never willingly, 281. That in the side grew, abashed, and all quaking 382. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 483. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 384. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 486. That what you wish governs this matter here." 387. In doe or thought, will I you disobey, 388. "That in your chamber you and I and she 389. "This is enough, Griselda mine," cried he. 489. Have consultation, and do you know why? 380. And wondered by what honest method there 381. Out at the door, and after him came she, 380. Have consultation, and do you know why? 381. And wondered by what honest method there	The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
246. He by the hand then took this ancient man 247. And said, when he had led him well aside: 248. "Janicula, I neither will nor can 249. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 249. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 240. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 240. If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide, 241. As I suppose, that you would have it be. 242. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 243. "You doughter will I take, before I wend, 244. You doughter will I take, before I wend, 245. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 246. To be my wife until her life's dear end. 247. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 248. "You love me, and I know it well today, 2494. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 249. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 240. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 241. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 242. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 243. "You love me, and I know it well today, 244. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 244. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 245. As I sahl think best, make you laugh or smart, 246. Pleases you too; especially therefore 247. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 248. Can we together in this compact draw, 249. And you to grumble never, night or day? 249. And you to grumble never, night or day? 240. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 241. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 242. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 243. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 244. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 245. That what you wish governs this matter here." 246. That what you wish governs this matter here." 247. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 248. That in your chamber you and I and she 249. The swar that never willingly, 240. And lore the went then with full sober cheer 241. To do your will; but against your liking 242. And othic people who were waiting near, 243. The in your chamber you and I and she 244. And while in cha			285.	But briefly through the matter now to race,
248. And said, when he had led him well aside: 248. "Janicula, I neither will nor can 249. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 240. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 250. If you but acquiresce, whate'er betide, 251. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 252. If you but acquiresce, whate'er betide, 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As I shall think best, make, you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 251. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 252. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 253. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 254. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 256. If he stood; nor could he answer further, no, 257. Assure me on the point I made before- 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And too, when I say 'yea' you say not 'nay' 250. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will, 'said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That i your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And while in chamber they three were about 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And while in chamber they three were about 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered,	245.	And to the marquis did her father bring.	286.	These are the very words the marquis said
248. "Janicula, I neither will nor can 249. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 249. If 's pleasing to your father and to me 249. If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide, 251. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 252. To be my wife until her life's dear end. 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. Assure me on the point I made before- 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. This sudden word the man astonished so 251. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 252. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 253. Than but to say; "O Lord, I am willing 254. To do your will; but against your liking 255. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 256. That what you wish governs this matter here." 257. What is an all love life, I say," 258. That what you wish governs this matter here." 259. And here I swill our contract bind." 260. This red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 263. That but to say; "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "The in will." said this marquis, quietly, 268. "The in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And while in chamber they three were about 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And wondered by what honest method there 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The pople crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. The new	246.	He by the hand then took this ancient man	287.	To this most modest, truly constant maid.
249. Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide. 250. If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide, 251. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 252. To be my wife until her life's dear end. 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 251. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 252. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 253. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 254. To do your will; but against your liking 255. That have you wish governs this matter here." 256. This wadden wish given so what you wish governs this matter here." 257. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 251. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 252. He stood; nor could be answer further, no, 253. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 254. To do your will; but against your liking 255. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 256. That what you wish governs this matter here." 257. Then I will, "said this marquis, quietly, 258. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 259. And all this shall be done in your presence, 270. Then i will, said this marquis quietly, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. The pople crowded through the house without 276. The pople crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. The pople of his sort she'd never	247.	And said, when he had led him well aside:	288.	"Griselda," said he, "You shall understand
250. If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide, 251. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 252. But these demands must I first make," said he, 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faitful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As I shall be done in his by wise, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 251. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 252. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 253. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 254. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 256. This sudden word the man astonished so 257. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 258. Can we together in this compact further, no, 259. And the stood; nor could he answer further, no, 260. This sudden word the man istonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "That in your chamber you and I and she 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. That in your chamber you and I and she 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. For never before that saw she such a sight. 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. For head of the proper gear 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their busine	248.	"Janicula, I neither will nor can	289.	It's pleasing to your father and to me
251. Your daughter will I take, before I wend, 252. To be my wife until her life's dear end. 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As Jahall think best, make you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. The pople of risks who house the here 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. Bo wonder, though, astonishment she felt 270. Wondering upon this is made the non- 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And whole in chamber they three were about 275. The people crowded through the house without 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. Bruth and there is no more to say." 270. The people crowded through the house without 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. From head to the people who were waiting near, 273. I will not speak without your audience."	249.	Conceal my love, nor my heart's longing hide.	290.	That I wed you, and even it may stand,
252. To be my wife until her life's dear end. 253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. Will you consent, or will you more advise? 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. Assure me on the point I made before- 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. To grant my wish, and that I freely may, 251. Assure me on the point I made before- 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. This sudden word the man astonished so 250. This sudden word the man astonished so 251. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 252. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 253. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 254. To do your will; but against your liking 255. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 256. That what you wish governs this matter here." 257. That in your chamber you and I and she 258. That in your chamber you and I and she 259. And I to take the honour you give me here; 260. This will," said this marquis, quietly, 261. That what you wish governs this matter here." 262. He stood; nor could she answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 277. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 278. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 279. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 271	250.	If you but acquiesce, whate'er betide,	291.	As I suppose, that you would have it be.
253. "You love me, and I know it well today, 254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 250. This sudden word the man astonished so 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will the 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 285. Will people of his sort she'd never dealt, 286. Will people of his sort she'd never dealt, 287. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 288. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 289. Will people of his sort she'd never dealt, 280. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	251.	Your daughter will I take, before I wend,	292.	But these demands must I first make," said he,
254. And are my faithful liege, and were of yore; 255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 257. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And will this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But what pou' bake where is no more to say." 270. The people crowded through the house without 271. And wondered by what honest method there 272. And wondered by what honest method there 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And wondered by what honest method there 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 271. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 272. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 273. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 274. All elected is ended to foot they clothed her all anew. 275. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fel	252.	To be my wife until her life's dear end.	293.	"And since it shall be done in hasty wise,
255. And all that pleases me, I dare well say, 266. Pleases you too; especially therefore 277. Assure me on the point I made before- 288. And you to grumble never, night or day? 289. And wou to grumble never, night or day? 289. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 289. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 280. This sudden word the man astonished so 380. By word or frown to what I have designed. 380. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 380. Swear this, and here I will our contract bind." 380. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 381. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 382. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 383. She said: "My lord, unsuited, unworthy 384. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 385. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 386. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 386. And here I swear that never willingly, 388. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 388. Than life, and I love life, I say." 389. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 389. What you'd have, that you disobey, 389. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 399. Have consultation, and do you know why? 390. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 390. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 391. Out at the door, and after him came she, 391. And all this shall be done in your presence, 392. And all this shall be done in your presence, 393. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 394. And wondered by what honest method there 395. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 396. And wondered by what honest method there 397. The pople crowded through the house without 397. The pople crowded through the house without 398. For never before that saw she might, 399. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 399. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 390. For never before that saw she such a sight. 390. Who wonder, though, astonishment she felt 391. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 392. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 393. Her hair they combed and brushed	253.	"You love me, and I know it well today,	294.	Will you consent, or will you more advise?
256. Pleases you too; especially therefore 277. As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart, 257. Assure me on the point I made before- 288. And you to grumble never, night or day? 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 300. By word or frown to what I have designed. 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 301. Swear this, and here I will our contract bind." 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 302. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 304. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 264. To do your will; but against your liking 305. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 306. And here I swear that never willingly, 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 307. In deed or thought, will I you disobey, 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 308. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 309. "This is enough, Griselda mine," cried he. 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 313. "This is my wife," he said, "who's standing here. 273. I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 276. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 316. And so that nothing of her former gear 317. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 320. For never before that saw she such a sight. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untr	254.	And are my faithful liege, and were of yore;	295.	"I say this: Are you ready with good heart
257. Assure me on the point I made before- 258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 285. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 286. Have together in this compact, and one people with here to his house, he hade 287. And wondered by shat honest method there 288. Carefully she'd kept her father dear. 289. For never before that saw she such a sight. 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	255.	And all that pleases me, I dare well say,	296.	To grant my wish, and that I freely may,
258. Can we together in this compact draw, 259. And too, when I say 'yea' you say not 'nay' 259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?'' 300. By word or frown to what I have designed. 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 301. Swear this, and here I will our contract bind.'' 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 302. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 303. She said: "My lord, unsuited, unworthy 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 304. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 264. To do your will; but against your liking 305. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 306. And here I swear that never willingly, 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 307. In deed or thought, will I you disobey, 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 308. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 309. "This is enough, Griselda mine," cried he. 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 276. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 382. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 383. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	256.	Pleases you too; especially therefore	297.	As I shall think best, make you laugh or smart,
259. And will you take me as your son-in-law?" 300. By word or frown to what I have designed. 260. This sudden word the man astonished so 301. Swear this, and here I will our contract bind." 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 302. Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear, 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 303. She said: "My lord, unsuited, unworthy 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 304. Am I to take the honour you give me here; 264. To do your will; but against your liking 305. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 266. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 306. And here I swear that never willingly, 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 308. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 309. Have consultation, and do you know why? 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 276. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 323. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	257.	Assure me on the point I made before-	298.	And you to grumble never, night or day?
260. This sudden word the man astonished so 261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. But what you'd have, that very thing would I. 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And while in chamber they three were about 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 271. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 272. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 273. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 274. All setlegits and allocade a general. 275. The people crowded hough the house without 276. The people crowded hough the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of h	258.	Can we together in this compact draw,	299.	And too, when I say 'yea' you say not 'nay'
261. That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking 262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All entlessly, and love they unwell and so that nothing of her former gear 284. All entlessly, and loved her all anew. 284. All entlessly, and loved her all anew. 284. At leastly and loved her all anew. 285. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 286. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 287. All entlessly, and placed a general.	259.	And will you take me as your son-in-law?"	300.	By word or frown to what I have designed.
262. He stood; nor could he answer further, no, 263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All entlessly, and loved a general.	260.	This sudden word the man astonished so	301.	Swear this, and here I will our contract bind."
263. Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing 264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 270. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And while in chamber they three were about 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	261.	That red he grew, abashed, and all quaking	302.	Wondering upon this word, quaking for fear,
264. To do your will; but against your liking 265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All eathers is method the rest than the rest thing would I. 284. All enthers is and have they threy dealt, 285. All enthers is not proved and brushed, which fell untressed	262.	He stood; nor could he answer further, no,	303.	She said: "My lord, unsuited, unworthy
265. I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear 266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All entlesses in the door thought, will I you disobey, 307. In deed or thought, will I you disobey, 308. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 309. "This is my life, and I love life, I say." 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 313. "This is my wife," he said, "who's standing here. 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 316. And so that nothing of her former gear 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed	263.	Than but to say: "O Lord, I am willing	304.	Am I to take the honour you give me here;
266. That what you wish governs this matter here." 267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All entlevelly and I love life, I say." 286. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 286. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 287. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 288. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 289. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 290. To handle or thought, will I you disobey. 291. And forth he went then with full sober chee. 292. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 293. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 294. All entlevely and placed a carronal.	264.	To do your will; but against your liking	305.	But what you'd have, that very thing would I.
267. "Then I will," said this marquis, quietly, 268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All antesely, and all love life, I say." 286. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 287. Their busines enough, Griselda mine," cried he. 288. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 289. To save my life, and I love life, I say." 280. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt untressed. 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	265.	I'll do no thing; you are my lord so dear	306.	And here I swear that never willingly,
268. "That in your chamber you and I and she 269. Have consultation, and do you know why? 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All entlessly and niced them with full sober cheer 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 313. "This is my wife," he said, "who's standing here. 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 316. And so that nothing of her former gear 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed	266.	That what you wish governs this matter here."	307.	In deed or thought, will I you disobey,
Have consultation, and do you know why? 310. And forth he went then with full sober cheer 270. Because I'd ask her if her will it be 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 277. And wondered by what honest method there 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed 324. All ordeach; and after him came she, 319. Out at the door, and after him came she, 310. And to the people who were waiting near, 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 313. "This is my wife," he said, "who's standing here. 314. Honour her, all, and love her,	267.	"Then I will," said this marquis, quietly,	308.	To save my life, and I love life, I say."
Because I'd ask her if her will it be 311. Out at the door, and after him came she, 271. To be my wife and so be ruled by me; 312. And to the people who were waiting near, 272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 277. And wondered by what honest method there 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 382. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 384. All entered to exerced.	268.	"That in your chamber you and I and she	309.	"This is enough, Griselda mine," cried he.
To be my wife and so be ruled by me; And all this shall be done in your presence, I will not speak without your audience." 1 will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, Who love me; and there is no more to say." Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, The people crowded through the house without The people crowded through the house without The people crowded by what honest method there That women strip her naked then and there; So carefully she'd kept her father dear. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, But more Griselda wondered, as she might, No wonder, though, astonishment she felt No wonder, though, astonishment she felt At seeing so great a guest within that place; With people of his sort she'd never dealt,	269.	Have consultation, and do you know why?	310.	And forth he went then with full sober cheer
272. And all this shall be done in your presence, 273. I will not speak without your audience." 274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All artlesely, and placed a gerangle.	270.	Because I'd ask her if her will it be	311.	Out at the door, and after him came she,
I will not speak without your audience." 314. Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray, 274. And while in chamber they three were about 315. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 277. And wondered by what honest method there 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed	271.	To be my wife and so be ruled by me;	312.	And to the people who were waiting near,
274. And while in chamber they three were about 275. Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, 276. The people crowded through the house without 277. And wondered by what honest method there 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All artlagely, and placed a governel. 285. Who love me; and there is no more to say." 316. And so that nothing of her former gear 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 319. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed	272.	And all this shall be done in your presence,	313.	"This is my wife," he said, "who's standing here.
Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear, The people crowded through the house without The people crowded through the house, he bade That women strip her naked then and there; Whereat these ladies were not over-glad To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt No wonder, though, astonishment she felt The people of his sort she'd never dealt, The people of his sort she'd never dealt, The people of his house, he bade That women strip her naked then and there; The people of his house, he bade The women strip her naked then and there; The people of his house, he bade The women strip her naked then and there; The people of his house, he bade The women strip her naked then and there; The handle clothes wherein she had been clad. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. The hardle clothes wherein she ha	273.	I will not speak without your audience."	314.	Honour her, all, and love her, all, I pray,
The people crowded through the house without 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 277. And wondered by what honest method there 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 317. She should take with her to his house, he bade 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed	274.	And while in chamber they three were about	315.	Who love me; and there is no more to say."
And wondered by what honest method there 318. That women strip her naked then and there; 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 319. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 319. Whereat these ladies were not over-glad 320. To handle clothes wherein she had been clad. 321. Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue 322. From head to foot they clothed her all anew. 323. Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell untressed 324. All extlessly, and plead a geronal	275.	Their business, whereof you'll hereafter hear,	316.	And so that nothing of her former gear
278. So carefully she'd kept her father dear. 279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All extlessly, and placed a geronal.	276.	The people crowded through the house without	317.	She should take with her to his house, he bade
279. But more Griselda wondered, as she might, 280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All extlessly, and placed a geronal.	277.	And wondered by what honest method there	318.	That women strip her naked then and there;
280. For never before that saw she such a sight. 281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All extlessly, and placed a geronal.	278.	So carefully she'd kept her father dear.	319.	Whereat these ladies were not over-glad
281. No wonder, though, astonishment she felt 282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All ortlosely, and placed a geronel.	279.	But more Griselda wondered, as she might,	320.	To handle clothes wherein she had been clad.
282. At seeing so great a guest within that place; 283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All ortlosely, and placed a geronel.	280.	For never before that saw she such a sight.	321.	Nevertheless, this maiden bright of hue
283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All artlasely, and placed a coronal	281.	No wonder, though, astonishment she felt	322.	From head to foot they clothed her all anew.
283. With people of his sort she'd never dealt, 284. All artlasely, and placed a coronal	282.	At seeing so great a guest within that place;	323.	Her hair they combed and brushed, which fell
284. Wherefore she looked on with a pallid face. 324. All artlessly, and placed a coronal	283.			untressed
1	284.	Wherefore she looked on with a pallid face.	324.	All artlessly, and placed a coronal

The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
325.	With their small fingers on her head, and dressed	366.	Wedded, by Fortune's grace, right honourably,
326.	Her robes with many jewels great and small;	367.	In the good peace of God lived easily
327.	Of her array how shall I tell withal?	368.	At home, and outward grace enough had he;
328.	Scarcely the people knew her for fairness,	369.	And since he saw that under low degree
329.	So transformed was she in her splendid dress.	370.	Is virtue often hid, the people fairly
330.	This marquis her has married with a ring	371.	Held him a prudent man, and that's done rarely.
331.	Brought for the purpose there; and then has set	372.	Not only this Griselda through her wit
332.	Upon a horse, snow-white and well ambling,	373.	Knew how with wifely arts her home to bless,
333.	And to his palace, without longer let,	374.	But also, when there was a need for it,
334.	With happy following folk and more they met,	375.	The people's wrongs she knew how to redress.
335.	Convoyed her home, and thus the day they spent	376.	There was no discord, rancour, heaviness
336.	In revelry until the sun's descent.	377.	In all that land that she could not appease,
337.	And briefly forth throughout this tale to chase,	378.	And wisely bring them all to rest and ease.
338.	I say that unto this new marchioness	379.	Although her husband from the court were gone,
339.	God has such favour sent her, of His grace,	380.	If gentlemen, or less, of her country
340.	It seemed in no way true, by likeliness,	381.	Were angered, she would bring them all at one;
341.	That she was born and bred in humbleness,	382.	So wise and so mature of speech was she,
342.	As in a hovel or an ox's stall,	383.	And judgments gave of so great equity,
343.	But rather nurtured in an emperor's hall.	384.	Men felt that God from Heaven her did send
344.	To everyone she soon became so dear	385.	People to save and every wrong to amend.
345.	And worshipful, that folk where she had dwelt	386.	Not long Griselda had, it seems, been wed
346.	And from her birth had known her, year by year,	387.	Before a daughter to her lord she bore,
347.	Although they could have sworn it, scarcely felt	388.	Though of a son she'd rather have gone to bed.
348.	That to Janicula, with whom I've dealt,	389.	Glad were the marquis and the folk therefor;
349.	She really was a daughter, for she seemed	390.	For though a girl-child came thus all before,
350.	Another creature now, or so they deemed.	391.	She might well to a boy-child yet attain,
351.	For though she ever had been virtuous,	392.	Since barren she was not, it now was plain.
352.	She was augmented by such excellence
353.	Of manners based on noble goodness thus,	PART	T III
354.	And so discreet and wise of eloquence,	393.	It happened, as it has sometimes before,
355.	So gentle and so worthy reverence,	394.	That when this child had sucked a month or so,
356.	And she could so the people's hearts embrace,	395.	This marquis in his heart such longing bore
357.	That each her loved that looked upon her face.	396.	To test his wife, her patience thus to know,
358.	Not only in Saluzzo, in the town,	397.	He could not in his heart the chance forgo
359.	Was published wide the goodness of her name,	398.	This marvelous desire his wife to try;
360.	But throughout many a land where she'd renown	399.	'Twas needless, God knows, thus to peek and pry
361.	If one said well, another said the same;	400.	He had sufficiently tried her before
362.	So widespread of her goodness was the fame	401.	And found her ever good; what needed it
363.	That men and women came; the young and old	402.	That he should test her ever more and more?
364.	Went to Saluzzo, her but to behold.	403.	Though some men praise it for a subtle wit,
365.	Thus Walter lowly, nay, but royally,	404.	Yet I say that to him 'twas no credit

The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
405.	To try his wife when there was never need,	446.	My child and I, with hearty obeisance,
406.	Putting her heart to anguish and to dread.	447.	Are all yours, and you may save us or kill
407.	In doing which the marquis took this turn:	448.	That which is yours; do you what thing you will.
408.	He came alone by night to where she lay	449.	"There is no thing, and so God my soul save,
409.	And with a troubled look and features stern	450.	That you may like displeasing unto me;
410.	He said to her: "Griselda mine, that day	451.	I do not wish a single thing to have,
411.	When I removed you from your poor array	452.	Nor dread a thing to lose, save only ye;
412.	And placed you in a state of nobleness-	453.	This will is in my heart and aye shall be,
413.	You have not all forgotten that, I guess.	454.	Nor length of time nor death may this deface,
414.	"I say, Griselda, this your dignity	455.	Nor turn my passion to another place."
415.	Wherein I have so placed you, as I trow,	456.	Glad was this marquis of her answering,
416.	Has not made you forgetful now to be	457.	And yet he feigned as if he were not so;
417.	That I raised you from poor estate and low	458.	All dreary were his face and his bearing
418.	For any good you might then have or know.	459.	When it came time from chamber he should go.
419.	Take heed of every word that now I say,	460.	Soon after this, a quarter-hour or so,
420.	There's no one else shall hear it, by my fay.	461.	He privily told all of his intent
421.	"You know and well enough how you came here	462.	Unto a man, whom to his wife he sent.
422.	Into this house, it is not long ago,	463.	A kind of sergeant was this serving man,
423.	And though to me you are both lief and dear,	464.	Who had proved often faithful, as he'd found,
424.	Unto my nobles you are not; and so	465.	In matters great, and such men often can
425.	They say that unto them 'tis shame and woe	466.	Do evil faithfully, as can a hound.
426.	To be your subjects and compelled to serve	467.	The lord knew this man loved him and was bound;
427.	You who are village-born and naught deserve.	468.	And when this sergeant learned his lordship's will
428.	"And specially, since that girl-child you bore,	469.	He stalked into the chamber, grim and still.
429.	These things they've said- of this there is no doubt;	470.	"Madam," said he, "you must forgive it me,
430.	But I desire, as I have done before,	471.	Though I do that to which I am constrained;
431.	To live at peace with all the folk about;	472.	You are so wise you know well, it may be,
432.	I cannot in this matter leave them out.	473.	That a lord's orders may not well be feigned;
433.	I must do with your daughter what is best,	474.	They may be much lamented or complained,
434.	Not as I would, but under men's behest.	475.	But men must needs their every wish obey,
435.	"And yet, God knows, the act is hard for me;	476.	And thus will I; there is no more to say.
436.	And only with your knowledge would I bring	477.	"This child I am commanded now to take"-
437.	The deed to pass, but this I would," said he,	478.	And spoke no more, but seized that innocent
438.	"That you assent with me to this one thing.	479.	Pitilessly, and did a gesture make
439.	Show now that patience in your life's dealing	480.	As if he would have slain it ere he went,
440.	You told me of and swore to in your village	481.	Griselda, she must suffer and consent;
441.	The day that marked the making of our marriage."	482.	And so, meek as a lamb, she sat there, still,
442.	When she had heard all this, this she received	483.	And let this cruel sergeant do his will.
443.	With never a word or change of countenance;	484.	Suspicious of repute was this same man,
444.	For, as it seemed, she was in no way grieved.	485.	Suspect his face, suspect his word also,
445.	She said: "Lord, all lies at your own pleasance;	486.	Suspect the time when this thing he began,

The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
487.	Alas! Her daughter that she had loved so,	528.	With all the necessaries, tenderly,
488.	She thought he'd slay it right there, whether or no.	529.	And in a coffer or some garment lap;
489.	Nevertheless, she neither wept nor sighed,	530.	But upon pain his head should meet mishap
490.	Doing the marquis' liking though she died.	531.	No man should know the least of his intent,
491.	At last she found her voice and thus began	532.	Nor whence he came, nor whither that he went;
492.	And meekly to the sergeant then she prayed	533.	But to Bologna, to his sister dear
493.	That, as he was a worthy, gentle man,	534.	Who then was of Panago the countess,
494.	She might kiss her child once before his blade;	535.	He should take it, and tell of matters here,
495.	And on her breast this little child she laid,	536.	Asking of her she do her busyness
496.	With sad face, and so kissed it and did press	537.	This child to foster in all nobleness;
497.	And lulled it and at last began to bless.	538.	And whose the child was, that he bade her hide
498.	And thus she said in her benignant voice:	539.	From everyone, for aught that might betide.
499.	"Farewell, my child that I no more shall see;	540.	The sergeant goes and has fulfilled this thing;
500.	But now I've crossed you thus, I will rejoice	541.	But to this marquis now return must we;
501.	That of the Father blessed may you be,	542.	For soon he went to see her, wondering
502.	Who died for us upon the bitter tree.	543.	If by his wife's demeanour he might see,
503.	Your soul, my little child, to Him I give;	544.	Or by her conversation learn that she
504.	This night you die for my sake- though I live."	545.	Were changed in aught; but her he could not find
505.	I think that to a nurse in such a case	546.	Other than ever serious and kind.
506.	It had been hard this pitiful thing to see;	547.	As glad, as humble, as busy in service,
507.	Well might a mother then have cried "Alas!"	548.	And even in love, as she was wont to be,
508.	But so steadfastly serious was she	549.	Was she to him at all times in each wise;
509.	That she endured all her adversity,	550.	And of her daughter not a word spoke she.
510.	And to the sergeant she but meekly said:	551.	No strange nor odd look of adversity
511.	"I give you now again your little maid.	552.	Was seen in her, and her dear daughter's name
512.	"Go now," said she, "and do my lord's behest,	553.	She never named in earnest nor in game.
513.	But one thing will I pray you, of your grace,	PART	ΓIV
514.	That, save my lord forbade you, at the least	554.	In this way over them there passed four years
515.	Bury this little body in some place	555.	Ere she with child was; but as High God would,
516.	Where beasts nor birds will tear its limbs and face."	556.	A boy-child then she bore, as it appears,
517.	But no word to that purpose would he say,	557.	By Walter, fair and pleasing to behold.
518.	But took the child and went upon his way.	558.	And when folk this word to the father told,
519.	This sergeant went unto his lord again	559.	Not only he but all the people raised
520.	And of Griselda's words and of her cheer	560.	Their joyous hymns to God and His grace praised.
521.	He told him point by point, all short and plain,	561.	When he was two years old and from the breast
522.	And so presented him his daughter dear.	562.	Weaned by his nurse, it chanced upon a day
523.	A little pity felt the marquis here;	563.	This marquis had another wish to test
524.	Nevertheless, he held his purpose still,	564.	And try his wife yet further, so they say.
525.	As great lords do when they will have their will;	565.	Oh, needless her temptation in this way!
526.	And bade the sergeant that he privily	566.	But wedded men no measure can observe
527.	Should softly swaddle the young child and wrap	567.	When they've a wife who's patient and will serve.

	erk's Tale Modern Translation
568.	"Wife," said this marquis, "you have heard before,	609.	Right gladly would I die, lord, you to please.
569.	My people bear our marriage with ill-will;	610.	"For death can offer no loss that is known
570.	Particularly since my son you bore	611.	Compared to your love's loss." And when, I say,
571.	Now it is worse than ever, all this ill.	612.	He saw his wife's great constancy, then down
572.	Their murmurs all my heart and courage kill,	613.	He cast his eyes, and wondered at the way
573.	For to my ears come words so aimed to smart	614.	She would in patience all his will obey;
574.	That they have well-nigh broken all my heart.	615.	And forth he went with dreary countenance,
575.	"Now they say this: 'When Walter's dead and gone.	616.	But in his heart he knew a great pleasance.
576.	Then shall Janicula's base blood succeed	617.	This ugly sergeant in the very wise
577.	And be our lord, for other have we none!'	618.	That he her daughter took away, so he
578.	Such words my people say, 'tis true, indeed!	619.	(Or worse, if worse than this men could devise)
579.	Well ought I of such murmurs to take heed;	620.	Has taken her son, the child of such beauty.
580.	For truly do I fear the populace,	621.	And always yet so all-patient was she
581.	Though they say nothing plainly to my face.	622.	That she no sign gave forth of heaviness,
582.	"I would exist in peace, if that I might;	623.	But kissed her son and so began to bless;
583.	Wherefore I am determined utterly	624.	Save this: She prayed him that, and if he might,
584.	That as his sister served I, and by night,	625.	Her son he'd bury in an earthen grave,
585.	Just so will I serve him full secretly;	626.	His tender limbs, so delicate to sight,
586.	And thus I warn you, that not suddenly	627.	From ravenous birds and from all beasts to save.
587.	Out of yourself for woe you start or stray;	628.	But she no answer out of him could have.
588.	Be patient in this sorrow, so I pray."	629.	He went his way as if he cared nor thought,
589.	"I have," said she, I said thus, and ever shall:	630.	But to Bologna tenderly 'twas brought.
590.	I'll have no thing, or not have, that's certain,	631.	This marquis wondered ever more and more
591.	Save as you wish; nothing grieves me at all,	632.	Upon her patience; and indeed if he
592.	Even though my daughter and my son are slain	633.	Had not known truly in her years before
593.	At your command, and that, I think, is plain.	634.	That she had loved her children perfectly,
594.	I have had no part in my children twain	635.	He would have thought that out of subtlety
595.	But sickness first, and after, woe and pain.	636.	And malice, or from some urge more savage
596.	"You are our master; do with your own thing	637.	She suffered this with calm face and courage.
597.	Just as you like; no counsel ask of me.	638.	But well he knew that, next himself, 'twas plain
598.	For, as I left at home all my clothing	639.	She loved her children best in every wise.
599.	When first I came to you, just so," said she,	640.	But now to ask of women I am fain,
600.	"Left will and all my liberty,	641.	Whether these trials should not the man suffice?
601.	And took your clothing; wherefore do I pray	642.	What could an obdurate husband more devise
602.	You'll do your pleasure, I'll your wish obey.	643.	To prove her wifehood and her faithfulness,
603.	"For certainly, if I had prescience	644.	And he continuing in his stubbornness?
604.	Your will to know ere you your wish had told,	645.	But there are folk to such condition grown
605.	I would perform it without negligence;	646.	That, when they do a certain purpose take,
606.	But now I know the wish that you unfold,	647.	They cannot quit the intent they thus own,
607.	To do your pleasure firmly will I hold;	648.	But just as they were bound unto a stake
608.	For knew I that my death would give you ease,	649.	They will not from that first hard purpose shake.
			., parpose situate.

The Cl	erk's Tale Modern Translation
650.	Just so this marquis fully was purposed	691.	To stop all such dissension as did win
651.	To test his wife, as he was first disposed.	692.	Between his folk and him; thus said the bull,
652.	He watched her, if by word or countenance	693.	The which thing they did publish to the full.
653.	She show a change toward him, or in courage;	694.	The ignorant people, as no wonder is,
654.	But never could he find a variance.	695.	Supposed of course that things were even so;
655.	She was aye one in heart and in visage;	696.	But when Griselda's ears caught word of this,
656.	And aye the farther that she went in age,	697.	I judge that then her heart was filled with woe.
657.	The more true, if such thing were possible,	698.	But she, for ever steadfast, still did show
658.	She was in love, and painstaking, as well.	699.	Herself disposed, this humble meek creature,
659.	From which it seemed that, as between those two,	700.	The adversity of Fortune to endure.
660.	There was but one will, for, to Walter's quest,	701.	Abiding ever his wish and pleasure still,
661.	The same thing was her sole desire also,	702.	To whom she had been given, heart and all;
662.	And- God be thanked!- all fell out for the best.	703.	He was her worldly hope, for good or ill;
663.	She showed well that, in all this world's unrest,	704.	But to tell all this briefly, if I shall,
664.	A wife, of her volition, nothing should	705.	This marquis wrote, in letter personal,
665.	Will to be done, save as her husband would.	706.	The devious working of his whole intent
666.	The scandal of this Walter widely spread,	707.	And secretly 'twas to Bologna sent.
667.	That, of his cruel heart, he'd wickedly	708.	Unto Panago's count, who had, we know,
668.	(Because a humble woman he had wed)	709.	Wedded his sister, prayed he specially
669.	Murdered his two young children secretly.	710.	To bring him home again his children two,
670.	Such murmurs went among them commonly.	711.	In honourable estate, all openly.
671.	No wonder, either, for to people's ear	712.	But one more thing he prayed him, utterly,
672.	There came no word but they'd been murdered there.	713.	That he to no one, whoso should inquire,
673.	For which, whereas the people theretofore	714.	Would tell who was their mother or their sire,
674.	Had loved him, now the scandal of such shame	715.	But say: The maiden married was to be
675.	Caused them to hate where they had loved before;	716.	Unto Saluzzo's marquis, and anon.
676.	To be a murderer brings a hateful name.	717.	And as this count was asked, so then did he;
677.	Nevertheless, in earnest nor in game	718.	For on day set he on his way was gone
678.	Would he from this his cruel plan be bent;	719.	Toward Saluzzo, with lords many a one,
679.	To test his wife was all his fixed intent.	720.	In rich array, this maiden there to guide,
680.	Now when his daughter was twelve years of age,	721.	With her young brother riding at her side.
681.	He to the court of Rome (in subtle wise	722.	So toward her marriage went this fresh young maid
682.	Informed of his design) sent his message,	723.	Clad richly and bedecked with jewels clear;
683.	Commanding them such bulls they should devise	724.	Her brother with her, boyishly arrayed,
684.	As for his cruel purpose would suffice,	725.	And all anew, was now in his eighth year.
685.	How that the pope, for Walter's people's rest,	726.	And thus in great pomp and with merry cheer
686.	Bade him to wed another, and the best.	727.	Toward Saluzzo went they on their way,
687.	I say, he ordered they should counterfeit	728.	And rode along together day by day.
688.	A papal bull and set it forth therein	PART	CV
689.	That he had leave his first wife now to quit,	729.	Meanwhile, according to his wicked way,
690.	By papal dispensation, with no sin,	730.	This marquis, still to test his wife once more,

The Clo 731.	erk's Tale Modern Translation Even to the final proof of her, I say,	772.	Have held me here in honour in this way,
732.	Fully to have experience to the core	773.	Where I was never worthy, once, to be,
733.	If she were yet as steadfast as before,	774.	For that, thank God and you- to God I pray
734.	He on a day in open audience	775.	He will reward you. There's no more to say.
735.	Loudly said unto her this rude sentence:	776.	Unto my father gladly will I wend
736.	"Truly, Griselda, I'd much joy, perchance,	777.	And dwell with him until my life shall end.
737.	When you I took for wife, for your goodness	778.	"Where I was fostered when an infant small,
738.	And for your truth and your obedience,	779.	There will I lead my life till I be dead,
739.	Not for your lineage nor your wealth, I guess;	780.	A widow, clean in body, heart, and all.
740.	But now I know, in utter certainness,	781.	For, since I gave to you my maidenhead,
741.	That in great lordship, if I well advise,	782.	And am your true and lawful wife, wedded,
742.	There is great servitude in sundry wise.	783.	May God forbid such a lord's wife to take
743.	"I may not act as every plowman may;	784.	Another man for husband or love's sake.
744.	My people have constrained me that I take	785.	"And of your new wife, may God of His grace
745.	'Another wife, and this they ask each day;	786.	Grant you but joy and all prosperity:
746.	And now the pope, hot rancour thus to slake,	787.	For I will gladly yield to her my place,
747.	Consents, I dare the thing to undertake;	788.	Wherein so happy I was wont to be,
748.	And truly now this much to you I'll say,	789.	For since it pleases you, my lord," said she,
749.	My new wife journeys hither on her way.	790.	Who have been all my heart's ease and its rest,
750.	"Be strong of heart and leave at once her place,	791.	That I shall go, I'll go when you request.
751.	And that same dower that you brought to me,	792.	"But whereas now you proffer me such dower
752.	Take it again, I grant it of my grace;	793.	As first I brought to you, it's in my mind
753.	Return you to your father's house," said he;	794.	That 'twas my wretched clothes and nothing fair.
754.	"No man may always have prosperity;	795.	The which to me were hard now for to find.
755.	With a calm heart I urge you to endure	•	my good God! How noble and how kind
756.	The stroke of Fortune or of adventure."	796.	You seemed then, in your speech and in your face.
757.	And she replied again, of her patience:	797.	The day we married in that humble place.
758.	"My lord," said she, "I know, and knew alway,	798.	"But truth is said- at least I find it true
759.	How that between your own magnificence	799.	For actually its proof is seen in me-
760.	And my poor state, no person can or may	800.	Old love is not the same as when it's new.
761.	Make a comparison in an equal way.	801.	But truly, lord, for no adversity,
762.	I never held me worthy or of grade	802.	Though I should die of all this, shall it be
763.	To be your wife, no, nor your chambermaid.	803.	That ever in word or deed I shall repent
764.	"And in this house, where lady you made me	804.	That I gave you my heart in whole intent.
765.	(The High God do I take now to witness,	805.	"My lord, you know that, in my father's place,
766.	And as He truly may my soul's joy be),	806.	You stripped from me my poor and humble weed
767.	I never held me lady nor mistress,	807.	And clothed me richly, of your noble grace.
768.	But only servant to your worthiness;	808.	I brought you nothing else at all indeed,
769.	And ever shall, while my life may endure,	809.	Than faith and nakedness and maidenhead.
770.	Beyond all worldly beings, that is sure.	810.	And here again my clothing I restore,
771.	"That you so long, of your benignity,	811.	And, too, my wedding-ring, for evermore.

The Cla	rk's Tale Modern Translation
812.	"The rest of all your jewels, they will be	853.	And send her thence as soon as ever he might.
813.	Within your chamber, as I dare maintain;	854.	To meet his daughter hastily went he,
814.	Naked out of my father's house," said she,	855.	For he, by noise of folk, knew her coming;
815.	"I came, and naked I return again.	856.	And with her old coat, such as it might be,
816.	To follow aye your pleasure I am fain,	857.	He covered her, full sorrowfully weeping;
817.	But yet I hope it is not your intent	858.	But the coat over her he could not bring,
818.	That smockless from your palace I be sent.	859.	For poor the cloth, and many days had passed
819.	"You could not do so base and shameful thing	860.	Since on her marriage day she wore it last.
820.	That the same womb in which your children lay	861.	Thus with her father, for a certain space,
821.	Should, before all the folk, in my walking,	862.	Did dwell this flower of wifely meek patience,
822.	Be seen all bare; and therefore do I pray	863.	Who neither by her words nor in her face,
823.	Let me not like a worm go on my way.	864.	Before the people nor in their absence,
824.	Remember that, my own lord, always dear,	865.	Showed that she thought to her was done offense;
825.	I was your wife, though I unworthy were.	866.	Nor of her high estate a remembrance
826.	"Wherefore, as guerdon for my maidenhead,	867.	Had she, to judge by her calm countenance.
827.	The which I brought, but shall not with me bear,	868.	No wonder, though, for while in high estate,
828.	Let them but give me, for my only meed,	869.	Her soul kept ever full humility;
829.	Such a poor smock as I was wont to wear,	870.	No mouth complaining, no heart delicate,
830.	That I therewith may hide the womb of her	871.	No pomp, no look of haughty royalty,
831.	Who was your wife; and here I take my leave	872.	But full of patience and benignity,
832.	Of you, my own dear lord, lest you should grieve.	873.	Discreet and prideless, always honourable,
833.	"The smock," said he, "that you have on your back,	874.	And to her husband meek and firm as well.
834.	Let it stay there and wear it forth," said he.	875.	Men speak of Job and of his humbleness,
835.	But firmness in so saying the man did lack;	876.	As clerks, when they so please, right well can write
836.	But went his way for ruth and for pity.	877.	Concerning men, but truth is, nevertheless,
837.	Before the folk her body then stripped she	878.	Though clerks' praise of all women is but slight,
838.	And in her smock, with head and feet all bare,	879.	No man acquits himself in meekness quite
839.	Toward her father's hovel did she fare.	880.	As women can, nor can be half so true
840.	The folk they followed, weeping and with cries,	881.	As women are, save this be something new.
841.	And Fortune did they curse as they passed on;
842.	But she with weeping did not wet her eyes,	PART	VI
843.	And all this while of words she said not one.	882.	Now from Bologna is Panago come,
844.	Her father, who had heard this news anon,	883.	Whereof the word spread unto great and less,
845.	Cursed then the day and hour when from the earth,	884.	And in the ears of people, all and some,
846.	A living creature, nature gave him birth.	885.	It was told, too, that a new marchioness
847.	For, beyond any doubt, this poor old man	886.	Came with him, in such pomp and such richness
848.	Had always feared the marquis soon would tire,	887.	That never had been seen with human eye
849.	And doubted since the marriage first began,	888.	So noble array in all West Lombardy.
850.	If when the lord had satisfied desire,	889.	The marquis, who had planned and knew all this,
851.	He would not think a wife of station higher,	890.	Before this count was come, a message sent
852.	For one of his degree, had been more right,	891.	To poor Griselda, who had lost her bliss;

The Cle 892.	erk's Tale Modern Translation With humble heart and features glad she went	933.	And fairer fruit betwixt the two should fall,
893.	And on her knees before her lord she bent.	934.	And pleasing more, for her high lineage;
894.	No pride of thought did her devotion dim;	935.	Her brother, too, so fair was of visage,
895.	She wisely and with reverence greeted him.	936.	That, seeing them, the people all were glad,
896.	He said, "Griselda, hear what I shall say:	937.	Commending now the sense the marquis had.
897.	This maiden, who'll be wedded unto me,	938.	"O storm-torn people! Unstable and untrue!
898.	Shall be received with splendour of array	939.	Aye indiscreet, and changing as a vane,
899.	As royally as in my house may be,	940.	Delighting ever in rumour that is new,
900.	And, too, that everyone in his degree	941.	For like the moon aye do you wax and wane;
901.	Have his due rank in seating and service,	942.	Full of all chatter, dear at even a jane;
902.	And high pleasance, as I can best devise.	943.	Your judgment's false, your constancy deceives,
903.	"I have not serving women adequate	944.	A full great fool is he that you believes!"
904.	To set the rooms in order as I would.	945.	Thus said the sober folk of that city,
905.	And so I wish you here to regulate	946.	Seeing the people staring up and down,
906.	All matters of the sort as mistress should.	947.	For they were glad, just for the novelty,
907.	You know of old the ways I think are good,	948.	To have a young new lady of their town.
908.	And though you're clothed in such a slattern's way,	949.	No more of this I'll mention or make known;
909.	Go do at least your duty as you may."	950.	But to Griselda I'll myself address
910.	"Not only am I glad, my lord," said she,	951.	To tell her constancy and busyness.
911.	"To do your wish, but I desire also	952.	Full busy Griselda was in everything
912.	To serve you and to please in my degree;	953.	That to the marquis' feast was pertinent;
913.	This without wearying I'll always do.	954.	Nothing was she confused by her clothing,
914.	And ever, lord, in happiness or woe,	955.	Though rude it was and somewhat badly rent
915.	The soul within my heart shall not forgo	956.	But with a glad face to the gate she went,
916.	To love you best with true intent, I know."	957.	With other folk, to greet the marchioness,
917.	Then she began to put the house aright,	958.	And afterward she did her busyness.
918.	To set the tables and the beds to make;	959.	With so glad face his guests she did receive,
919.	And was at pains to do all that she might,	960.	And with such tact, each one in his degree,
920.	Praying the chambermaids, for good God's sake,	961.	That no fault in it could a man perceive;
921.	To make all haste and sweep hard and to shake;	962.	But all they wondered much who she might be
922.	And she, who was most serviceable of all,	963.	That in so poor array, as they could see,
923.	Did every room array, and his wide hall.	964.	Yet knew so much of rank and reverence;
924.	About mid-morning did this count alight,	965.	And worthily they praised her high prudence.
925.	Who brought with him these noble children twain,	966.	In all this while she never once did cease
926.	Whereat the people ran to see the sight	967.	The maiden and her brother to commend
927.	Of their array, so rich was all the train;	968.	With kindness of a heart that was at peace,
928.	And for the first time did they not complain,	969.	So well that no man could her praise amend.
929.	But said that Walter was no fool, at least,	970.	But at the last, when all these lords did wend
930.	To change his wife, for it was for the best.	971.	To seat themselves to dine, then did he call
931.	For she was fairer far, so thought they all,	972.	Griselda, who was busy in his hall.
932.	Than was Griselda, and of younger age,	973.	"Griselda," said he, as it were in play,

The Cle 974.	erk's Tale Modern Translation "How like you my new wife and her beauty?"	1015.	"And folk that otherwise have said of me,
974. 975.	"Right well," said she, "my lord, for by my fay	1015.	I warn them well that I have done this deed
975. 976.	A fairer saw I never than is she.	1010.	Neither for malice nor for cruelty,
970. 977.	I pray that God give her prosperity;	1017.	But to make trial in you of virtue hid,
977. 978.	And so I hope that to you both He'll send	1016.	And not to slay my children, God forbid!
978. 979.	Great happiness until your lives shall end.	1019.	But just to keep them privily and still
979. 980.	"One thing I beg, my lord, and warn also,	1020.	Till I your purpose knew and all your will."
980. 981.		1021.	When she heard this, she swooned and down did fall
	That you prick not, with any tormenting,	1022.
982.	This tender maid, as you've hurt others so;		For pitiful joy, and after her swooning
983.	For she's been nurtured in her up-bringing	1024.	Both her young children to her did she call,
984.	More tenderly, and, to my own thinking,	1025.	And in her arms, full piteously weeping,
985.	She could not such adversity endure	1026.	Embraced them, and ail tenderly kissing,
986.	As could one reared in circumstances poor."	1027.	As any mother would, with many a tear
987.	And when this Walter thought of her patience,	1028.	She bathed their faces and their sunny hair.
988.	Her glad face, with no malice there at all,	1029.	Oh, what a pitiful thing it was to see
989.	And how so oft he'd done to her offence,	1030.	Her swooning, and her humble voice to hear!
990.	And she aye firm and constant as a wall,	1031.	"Thanks, lord, that I may thank you now," said she,
991.	Remaining ever blameless through it all,	1032.	"That you have saved to me my children dear!
992.	This cruel marquis did his heart address	1033.	Now I am ready for death right here;
993.	To pity for her wifely steadfastness.	1034.	Since I stand in your love and in your grace,
994.	"This is enough, Griselda mine!" cried he,	1035.	Death matters not, nor what my soul may face!
995.	"Be now no more ill pleased nor more afraid;	1036.	"O young, O dear, O tender children mine,
996.	I have your faith and your benignity,	1037.	Your woeful mother thought for long, truly,
997.	As straitly as ever woman's was, assayed	1038.	That cruel hounds, or birds, or foul vermin
998.	In high place and in poverty arrayed.	1039.	Had eaten you; but God, of His mercy,
999.	Now know I well, dear wife, your steadfastness."	1040.	And your good father, all so tenderly,
1000.	And he began to kiss her and to press.	1041.	Have kept you safely." And in swoon profound
1001.	And she, for wonder, took of this no keep;	1042.	Suddenly there she fell upon the ground.
1002.	She heard not what the thing was he had cried;	1043.	And in her swoon so forcefully held she
1003.	She fared as if she'd started out of sleep,	1044.	Her children two, whom she'd had in embrace,
1004.	Till from bewilderment she roused her pride.	1045.	That it was hard from her to set them free,
1005.	"Griselda," said he, "by our God Who died,	1046.	Her arms about them gently to unlace.
1006.	You are my wife, no other one I have,	1047.	Oh, many a tear on many a pitying face
1007.	Nor ever had, as God my soul may save!	1048.	Ran down, of those were standing there beside;
1008.	"This is your daughter, whom you have supposed	1049.	Scarcely, for sympathy, could they abide.
1009.	Should be my wife; the other child truly	1050.	But Walter cheered her till her sorrow fled;
1010.	Shall be my heir, as I have aye purposed;	1051.	And she rose up, abashed, out of her trance;
1011.	You bore him in your body faithfully.	1052.	All praised her now, and joyous words they said,
1012.	I've kept them at Bologna secretly;	1053.	Till she regained her wonted countenance.
1013.	Take them again, for now you cannot say	1054.	Walter so honoured her by word and glance
1014.	That you have lost your children twain for aye.	1055.	That it was pleasing to observe the cheer

The Cle	erk's Tale Modern Translation
1056.	Between them, now again together here.	1097.	As James says, if you his epistle read;
1057.	These ladies, when they found a tactful way,	1098.	Yet does He prove folk at all times, indeed,
1058.	Withdrew her and to her own room were gone,	1099.	And suffers us, for our good exercise,
1059.	And stripped her out of her so rude array,	1100.	With the sharp scourges of adversity
1060.	And in a cloth of gold that brightly shone,	1101.	To be well beaten oft, in sundry wise;
1061.	Crowned with a crown of many a precious stone	1102.	Not just to learn our will; for truly He,
1062.	Upon her head, once more to hall they brought	1103.	Ere we were born, did all our frailty see;
1063.	Her, where they honoured her as all they ought.	1104.	But for our good is all that He doth give.
1064.	Thus had this heavy day a happy end,	1105.	So then in virtuous patience let us live.
1065.	For everyone did everything he might	1106.	But one word, masters, hearken ere I go:
1066.	The day in mirth and revelry to spend	1107.	One hardly can discover nowadays,
1067.	Till in the heavens shone the stars' fair light.	1108.	In all a town, Griseldas three or two;
1068.	For far more grand in every person's sight	1109.	For, if they should be put to such assays,
1069.	This feast was, and of greater cost, 'twas said,	1110.	Their gold's so badly alloyed, in such ways,
1070.	Than were the revels when they two were wed.	1111.	With brass, that though the coin delight the eye,
1071.	Full many a year in high prosperity	1112.	'Twill rather break in two than bend, say I.
1072.	They lived, these two, in harmony and rest,	1113.	But now, for love of the good wife of Bath,
1073.	And splendidly his daughter married he	1114.	Whose life and all whose sex may God maintain
1074.	Unto a lord, one of the worthiest	1115.	In mastery high, or else it were but scathe,
1075.	In Italy; and then in peace, as best	1116.	I will with joyous spirit fresh and green
1076.	His wife's old father at his court he kept	1117.	Sing you a song to gladden you, I ween;
1077.	Until the soul out of his body crept.	1118.	From all such serious matters let's be gone;
1078.	His son succeeded to his heritage	1119.	Hearken my song, which runs in this way on:
1079.	In rest and peace, after the marquis' day,
1080.	And wedded happily at proper age,		OY OF CHAUCER
1081.	Albeit he tried his wife not, so they say.	1120.	Griselda's dead, and dead is her patience,
1082.	This world is not so harsh, deny who may,		In Italy both lie buried, says the tale;
1083.	As in old times that now are long since gone,	1122.	For which I cry in open audience,
1084.	And hearken what this author says thereon.	1123.	That no man be so hardy as to assail
1085.	This story's told here, not that all wives should	1124.	His own wife's patience, in a hope to find
1086.	Follow Griselda in humility,	1125.	Griselda, for 'tis certain he shall fail!
1087.	For this would be unbearable, though they would,	1126.	noble wives, full of a high prudence,
1088.	But just that everyone, in his degree,	1127.	Let not humility your free tongue nail,
1089.	Should be as constant in adversity	1128.	Nor let some clerk have cause for diligence
1090.	As was Griselda; for that Petrarch wrote	1129.	To write of you, so marvelous detail
1091.	This tale, and in a high style, as you'll note.	1130.	As of Griselda, patient and so kind;
1092.	For since a woman once was so patient	1131.	Lest Chichevache swallow you in her entrail!
1093.	Before a mortal man, well more we ought	1132.	Nay, follow Echo, that holds no silence,
1094.	Receive in good part that which God has sent;	1133.	But answers always like a countervail;
1095.	For cause he has to prove what He has wrought.	1134.	Be not befooled, for all your innocence,
1096.	But He tempts no man that His blood has bought,	1135.	But take the upper hand and you'll prevail.

The Clerk's Tale Modern Translation

- 1136. And well impress this lesson on your mind,
- 1137. For common profit, since it may avail.
- 1138. Strong-minded women, stand at your defence,
- 1139. Since you are strong as camel and don't ail,
- 1140. Suffer no man to do to you offence;
- 1141. And slender women in a contest frail,
- 1142. Be savage as a tiger there in Ind;
- 1143. Clatter like mill, say I, to beat the male.
- 1144. Nay, fear them not, nor do them reverence;
- 1145. For though your husband be all armed in mail,
- 1146. The arrows of your shrewish eloquence
- 1147. Shall pierce his breast and pierce his aventail.
- 1148. In jealousy I counsel that you bind,
- 1149. And you shall make him cower as does a quail.
- 1150. If you are fair to see, in folks' presence,
- 1151. Show them your face and with your clothes regale;
- 1152. If you are foul, be lavish of expense,
- 1153. To gain friends never cease to do travail;
- 1154. Be lightsome as a linden leaf in wind,
- 1155. And let him worry, weep and wring and wail!